1 Read about Kirstin, an Icelandic teenager.

Kirstin is thirteen and she lives in Iceland with her family on a farm near Reykjavik, the capital city.

During the winter, on school days Kirstin and her older brother Jon Axel get up at 6.45. They have a shower, get dressed and then they have breakfast. After breakfast they clean their teeth and go to school.

Their mother drives them to school at 7.30. The school is 30 km from their house.

They arrive at school at 7.50 and lessons begin at eight o'clock. Kirstin has first Maths and then, at 8.45, she has English; afterwards she has a Danish lesson and then an Icelandic lesson at 9.30. Kirstin speaks three languages: Icelandic, Danish and English.

At a quarter past ten there is a break and all the students have hot milk and cereals; it is very cold outside in winter, so they stay inside the school. Lunch is at 13.10 and Kirstin and Jon Axel have a hot meal in the school canteen.

They have sport activities in the afternoon. Jon Axel plays basketball and Kirstin swims in the heated swimming pool. School finishes at 4.20, and they go back home. They do their homework, have dinner, talk to their parents and watch TV. Finally, they go to bed at nine o'clock.
